

Lisa Auermuller

Administrative Director – Megalopolitan Coastal Transformation Hub Rutgers, Department of Marine and Coastal Sciences

Lisa Auermuller serves as the Administrative Director of Rutgers' NSF-funded Megalopolitan Coastal Transformation Hub (MACH). In this role, Lisa is the central manager of overall operations of the multi-institution effort. Lisa establishes mechanisms for collaborative sharing of findings among project partners, conducts regular outreach to promote coordination and collaboration with government agencies, and community leaders, and facilitates meaningful and routine collaboration and sharing among project partners.

Prior to 2023, Lisa was the Assistant Manager of the Jacques Cousteau National Estuarine Research Reserve (JC NERR) in Tuckerton, NJ where she had been employed since 2002. Lisa oversaw the day-to-day management of JC NERR's Coastal Center as well as the Reserve's education, outreach, communications, and Coastal Training Program.
